Media Release no. 03/08

Zurich/Switzerland – From March 2008, the new service VDF Time Series will be part of the Valordata Feed data offering. With the time series supplied for 21 simple and more complex quotation types, users will be able to trace back data for up to 10 years.

Up until now, only daily valuation prices for various price types have been supplied through Telekurs Financial's Valordata Feed (VDF). With the new VDF Times Series service, however, complete time series will now be included in VDF. This will help banks with completing their portfolios by adding the time series for individual instruments.

The time series are supplied in VDF format and can be retrieved as an add-on to other VDF deliveries. Since VDF customers have already implemented this format, the launch of the VDF Time Series does not entail any additional work.

"The idea of obtaining not just individual prices but entire time series via VDF was put forward by our customers", says Arno Wilhelm, head of Securities Processing Products at Telekurs Financial. "We are proud that we have been able to implement this new service in a short period of time to meet the requirements of our customers without delay".
